I was also scared when my family and me moved to Chile, but most of the people are really nice to me. Once, an old man insulted me because he noticed that I am Peru, but I stopped him and many people helped me. I was sad and a woman told me "Hey, don't worry, this is not my country or the country of that crazy man. Borders are just lines". Irina: Oh, that is deep. Yupanqui: Yes, and I believe she is right. In the school you will meet girls from many countries. I have friends from Chile, Venezuela, Japan, Brazil, and now, a Russian friend. Irina: Oh, Yupanqui, you are so nice. Yupanqui: Ha-ha, thank you. So, don't worry! Some of the Chinese looked at me, but did not say anything. Later I asked my American friend Albert, who lives in China many years, and she said that I drank tea from soup bowl and ate soup from the tea bowl. 😊

Alexia es una chica que tiene una amigo llamado Albert, que es American. Ellos están en China, pues conversan de una divertida anécdota que le pasó a Alexia. Esta se relaciona por una confusión que tuvo Alexia en las tazas que se usan allá, para el té y para comer arroz; Alexia bebió en la que correspondía para comer arroz y comió arroz en la que debía beber té. Albert no le dijo nada, pues no dañaba a nadie, sólo rieron.

Ahora bien, hay otro texto para completar con las reacciones de ambos en dicho restaurant, es como si tú estuvieras en esa escena intentando saber que se decían estos amigos. Vamos a resolver ese ítem en conjunto, pues esta actividad te desafía aún más para superarte en este idioma. No será difícil saber qué conversan estos amigos, pues aplica las técnicas anteriores y aplica las palabritas del recuadro para saber el contenido de la conversación. Revisa primero los países, luego las acciones en pasado y sólo debes ocuparlas para responder 3 veces. Te ayudaré con una y luego complementas:

Alexia: Oh, I was really thirsty. Everything is awesome here in (1) _____ I would love to come back here again.

Alexia's friend (Albert): Yes! That is the reason why I still live here, I don't miss the (2) _____, my home is here now ha-ha.

Alexia: I have a question, while I was drinking tea, I noticed that a lot of people were looking at me. Why were they looking at me?

Albert: My dear Alexia, they were looking at you because (3)

You drank tea from the wrong bowl... _____.

Alexia: Hey! Why didn't you tell me before?

Alexia's friend (Albert): Well, I didn't tell you because you were not hurting anyone.
